Miss Ederle was about seven miles from Dover, her goal, when she was reported to have collapsed. She was rescued by a tugboat and taken to the shore.

Girl Is Fearless.

Miss Ederle showed no perturbation as she slipped into the water. She is absolutely fearless. A fact of which she gave ample evidence. She belied the report that her sex will retreat at the sight of a mouse by ignoring as so important reports by fishermen that a school of sharks had been up its abode in the channel.

She stood a moment on the rocks of the cape glistening in the sun, and then slipped into the water. It was exactly 7:10 o'clock.

Too Much Speed.

Miss Ederle began her swim with an eight-boat crew, gradually increasing the rhythm until the faithful rowboat cautioned her against too much speed.

The American girl, spouting the water from her mouth, called back cheerily, "I'm feeling peppy."

Burgess was in bathing togs and expected to take the water from time to time to encourage the girl in her arduous task.

Barge Canal Is Certain to Pay

Says Senator Gibbs, Provided It Is Kept Free From Politics—Expect Record Amount of Business This Season.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 18.—The New York state barge canal is certain to be a paying project within a few years, in the opinion of Senator Leonard H. Gibbs of Buffalo, chairman of the special commission which recently completed a survey of the waterway.

One of the big factors in making the canal a success is to keep it free from politics, according to Gibbs. The commission headed by Gibbs was created by the 1925 legislature at the suggestion of Governor Smith. In making the suggestion the governor pointed to the fact that the canal had been a losing proposition for the state for some years. The governor's recommendation was followed by reports at the capitol that plans were under way to scrap the canal if it could not be made to pay for itself.

"The canal is a long ways from the scrap pile," said Senator Gibbs. There is every indication now that all records for business on the canal in the last ten years will be smashed this season. The commission regards this as an indication the canal is fast coming into its own.

When the governor suggested the creation of the commission he told the legislature he had been informed by the department of public works that it would cost upwards of $16,000,000 to put the canal in first class condition. This phase of the situation has not yet been discussed by the commission, Gibbs said. The senator intimated, however, he did not believe it would cost as much as that to repair the canal.

George Mador, a young man of 19 years, said to be a medical student who resides at Jersey City, N. Y., and came to Woodstock several days ago for a rest, was reported missing Monday evening. The local police were asked to help locate him. Mador's parents, in answer to a request from him, telegraphed a sum of money to him at Woodstock and Monday night when they found he had not called for the money they became alarmed and sought to locate him.

The local police were notified that he had come to Woodstock last Wednesday for a two weeks' vacation; and on Thursday had telegraphed home for money. His sister sent the money as requested. Later she was notified by the telegraph company that the money had not been called for. She became alarmed and telephoned to several boarding houses at Woodstock in an effort to locate him. When she failed to locate him she asked the police to assist.

The police got in touch with the State Troopers and they went out to look for Mador who they found established at the Cashdollar boarding house. When asked by Trooper Coons why he had not called for the money which he requested, he informed the Trooper that he still had a check for $70 and did not need the money which had been sent. He eventually was leaving it with the telegraph company until such time as he needed it. At the Troopers' request he went to a phone and called his home, notifying the family that he was well and happy.

Coolidge Stays Another Day

Postpones Return to Summer Capital and Renews Old Acquaintance with Old Neighbors in Vermont Village.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 18.—Clear, cool weather encouraged President Coolidge to linger on today at his boyhood home here high up in the Green Mountains, and tentative plans to start the return journey to the summer White House at Swampscott, Mass., this morning were abandoned for at least 24 more hours.

There was nothing special in the executive's schedule for the day. His only engagement was for luncheon at Woodstock, about sixteen miles from here, with Governor Billings of Vermont. The president contented himself with loitering around the house, talking with his aged father, Colonel John C. Coolidge, and strolling leisurely about, renewing acquaintanceship with the scenes of his youth.

It is probable that the motor trip back to the north shore will be started tomorrow. An over-night stop, however, is expected at Northampton, Mass., to visit Mrs. Coolidge's mother, Mrs. Grace I. Goodhue.

Think Knapp Was At Poughkeepsie

It is thought by Sheriff C. Fred Close of Orange county that the bandit who held up and robbed Thomas Palisi, a taxi driver of Beacon last Thursday night, and Douglas Woodin, a taxi driver of Poughkeepsie, on July 14, is Philip K. Knapp, alleged "thrill" murderer, who is being sought throughout the United States.

Sheriff Close upholds this notion by bringing to notice the fact that these two holdups were carried out in many ways similar to the robberies which it is alleged Knapp has committed up-state.

Palisi, a taxi driver of Beacon, was robbed of $25 in cash, his watch and his Buick sedan, which was recovered later. In every way the account of Palisi's holdup tallies with the others that Knapp is charged with up-state Douglas Woodin of Poughkeepsie, also a taxi driver, was robbed of $90, a stick pin and a wrist watch on July 14, and his experiences were practically the same as Palisi's.

As in the case of Palisi and Woodin, the alleged bandit in the robberies reported up-state had met the driver at a railroad station and requested him to drive to some distant point. Window cord, which makes a small handy bundle, was used in each case to bind the victim but in no case was any roughness shown. Indeed, the bandit is gaining a reputation for polite conduct.

The fact that he has followed a regular trail in all the robberies and that the latest one occurred near

New York, seems to indicate that he is on his way to New York, where his next reappearance will be awaited with anxiety and interest.

Starting from a point near Syracuse similar robberies have been reported in Amsterdam, Watervliet, Rensselaer, Albany and Schenectady. He has made taxi drivers his victim each instance. When it is recalled that Knapp murdered a taxi driver, this point takes on unusual interest.

RADIO FIRST TO TELL OF SANTA BARBARA QUAKE

Two Amateurs Link Up City With Outside World After Tremor Laid Place In Ruins.

Santa Barbara, Cal.—To Brandon Wentworth, Jr., and Graham George of this city, the former an official relay operator of the American Radio Relay league, fell the duty of first linking up Santa Barbara with the outside world after the disastrous earthquake that shook the entire city.

The first news telling the outside world of the city's plight; the first reassuring messages to friends on the outside; the first call for naval aid in guarding against vandals were the work of Wentworth and George.

When the tremor hit the city, raising buildings, disrupting the power system, putting the water works out of commission and cutting off Santa Barbara from the rest of the world, these two youthful radio enthusiasts, like all others, lost their home stations in the general collapse of higher structures.

Undeterred by the loss of their own equipment the two young men made post haste to the radio store of Bolton & Jones where materials were available for the use of those who knew how. Wentworth and George knew how. Within an hour of the first shock they had assembled a three-inch spark coil, a rotary gap, twelve-volt battery and a key for transmission of an "SOS."

An undamaged superheterodyne receiver from the store took care of the reception and the busy pair of radio men immediately started sending out their "SOS." The tanker H. M. Story, station KIDVV, and the tug Peacock, station KIDKY, were the first two to pick up the calls. The tug acted as relay station in the call for naval aid and in sending out the news of the disaster. The emergency station continued its work until other communication was restored.

Indiana Doctor Says Hog Cares for Helpless Mule

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Kindness is a trait of animals of the lower order, and often is more pronounced than in human nature, according to Dr. W. F. Schrader of this city, who long has made a study of animals and their relationships with each other.

Doctor Schrader tells a story of a hog who administered to a mule which had broken its leg.

"An old mule had been turned into a large pasture and in some manner had broken the bone in one hind leg," he said. "Instinct led her to mire the leg in a muddy pond. How long she had been there when discovered is not known, but it was evident that food had been brought to the animal while she stood there permitting the bone to knit. Examination showed bone union progressing nicely. Evidence of corn stalks around her indicated that someone had been providing food."

"While several persons were watching the animal they saw a sow come up carrying in her mouth several stalks of ripening corn, brought from a field 300 yards distant. She laid them at the feet of the mule. From evidence in the cornfield, this had been going on for a period of several days."

Doctor Schrader also related observing an old hen force other hens to move from the lower rungs of a perch so that young ones just beginning the habit of roosting on perches might have the more accessible places. The hen was not the mother of the brood to which she showed this consideration, Doctor Schrader said.

Find Petrified Forest of Giant Oak Trees

Spokane, Wash.—Discovery of a petrified forest of giant oak trees, believed to be the only one of its kind on the North American continent, has been made near the confluence of the Spokane and Columbia rivers in this state.

Owing to its difficulty of access, the forest has not yet been fully explored, but is known to extend for half a mile along the south bank of the Columbia. The trees are two to five feet in diameter and some 60 feet tall.

The forest, of what apparently was a growth similar to our oaks, is imbedded in the basalt that partially covered that part of the state of Washington.

The trees are seen on the precipitous walls of the canyon, where erosion has broken away the solid rock. Where the tree trunks have been brought into contact with the air the wood has rapidly decomposed and left hollow shafts in the solid rock.

By traveling along the ledges and breaking away the loose accumulations of small scalings, the "forest" may be entered, one tree at a time, as the wall of the canyon is of solid basalt and the only openings are where the trunks of the trees offer perpendicular shafts, most of which are still filled with the decaying wood of many centuries ago.

It is believed further exploration of the site may reveal the remains of animal life of the period when the molten rock overflooded the forest.

Many Lakes in Park

GRADE CROSSINGS ACCIDENTS.

At the next election the people will decide whether $300,000,000 is to be raised through a state bond issue for the elimination of grade crossings. As to the danger of the crossings, it is very interesting to note that the state motor vehicle bureau has been making an investigation of motor vehicle accidents. In its report for the first six months of 1925 it says that of the 18,400 motor vehicle accidents only forty were at grade crossings. This is less than one-fourth of one per cent. The bureau goes further and holds that its investigation shows that out of 555 deaths through motor vehicle accidents in the first six months of 1925, just fifteen were at grade crossings.

This report does not support to any extent Governor Smith's contention that millions should be obtained through a bond issue to wipe out grade crossings. The bureau also reports that two-thirds of all the deaths through motor vehicle accidents in New York state, in the first six months of 1925, were pedestrians struck by automobiles.

The amendment providing for a bond issue of $300,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings permits the loan of money obtained through this bond issue to railroads and townships, in cases where there is a shortage of funds, so as to facilitate grade crossing elimination. It is provided by the terms of the amendment that this money may be returned to the state in a manner to be prescribed by the legislature. In other words, the railroads and towns are permitted to borrow the state's money.

The amendment provides that the railroads shall pay fifty per cent of the cost of elimination of grade crossings; the town twenty-five per cent, and the state twenty-five per cent. If the railroads and towns should remit to the state loans made for grade crossing elimination, the eventual cost to the state, however would be $75,000,000.

STUDY OF CRIME.

There is need of statistical analysis covering all the states similar to "Crime and the Georgia Courts" recently published in the Journal of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology. In no previous period have such statistics of crime been so imperatively demanded, for crime is now abnormally rampant and complete information is the most important of the first steps toward any solution of the problem. The usefulness of the Georgia report may be indicated merely by mention of its table giving for various crimes the percentage of convictions secured out of the number of defendants brought to trial. For example, in one of the courts the percentage of convictions for burglary is 62, for forgery 61 and for larceny 54, but for murder the percentage is only 23.

The percentage of convictions for this worst of crimes is even lower in no few of the other states, where the problem of lessening the murderer's chances of escape is more serious than it is in Georgia. Inevitably we are reminded of the cynical assertion quoted from the leader of a ring of thugs and gun-men in Chicago that murder is "one of the safest of crimes," the chances being "100 to 1 that you won't be executed" even if brought to trial, and "5 to 1 that even if you get into the pen you will be out before five years." It is easy to say that there is something radically wrong in our dealing with this most serious of crimes; it is much less easy to say just what or how much is at fault. But the more complete the information on the whole subject, the greater will be the possibility of achieving some solution of the problem.

NO LONGER "POOR LO."

Lo, the poor Indian, long famed in song and story, no longer exists in New York state to the extent of being poor. The very small portion of the ground over which his ancestors roamed and hunted now owned by the Indians yields through well tilled acres a living that places him on a par with his white cousin. The report comes in New York state establishes this fact, disclosing, as it does, nearly 24,000 acres under cultivation this summer, and with the grandson of many a warrior guiding the plowshare rather than the flint-tipped arrow.

With farms varying from 50 to as high as 300 or more acres, the Indians are showing themselves natural born farmers, fully able to compete with the white man and to bring to full fruition the products of the soil. Taking advantage of the educational opportunities afforded in school and college, the younger generation has forged ahead in many respects.

Indians are holding their own fairly well in New York state when it comes to numbers. The census shows that there are 4,668 on the reservations in this state, or about 300 less than in 1905. Through an Act of Congress in 1924, all Indians were enumerated this year as citizens and will accordingly figure in the coming reapportionment of the state.

KINKS AND BULGES.

I talk about the value of the X-ray or Barium meal very often, because it teaches many things. Unfortunately some physicians are not concerned about the patient very much, if the X-ray does not show any ulcer, cancer, or serious malformation.

However in tracing the causation of a series of cases of "indigestion" as it is so often called, where there was vomiting, pain, loss of appetite, and so forth, a New York physician has used the results of the X-ray meal to show that the stomach and intestine may be free from any disease and yet cause a great deal of trouble.

He found that the structure of these organs may not be just normal and thus disturbances of digestion would be quite frequent. For instance a "dropped" stomach, that is the stomach hanging down as it were in the abdomen, would mean a delay in the emptying of the stomach. If the food were taken before it was completely empty there would be gas formation and pressure pains. Then further down on the large intestine, there were found certain parts that were dilated, and some also that had dropped below their normal positions.

Now what is going to happen, where there is dilation and misplacement of the intestine? There is bound to be a "stasis," or stoppage of the contents, for a longer period than is normal. This delay, this stasis, this stoppage, whatever you wish to call it, actually permits the waste matter to become a foreign body, a poison, which spreads throughout the entire system.

Physiologists have been telling us for a great many years, that with the great length of intestine in the human body, the long one to absorb the nourishment from the food, and the shorter or large intestine to act as a reservoir for the waste matter that you were meant to eat all kinds of leafy, grassy, rough foods. You see there is plenty of time for every thing to get absorbed in such a long canal. The large intestine is necessary to collect all the waste from this small or long intestine. No trouble was expected from any delay in the large intestine, because the waste, the roughage from the foods mentioned above, would irritate or stimulate movement there. However due to eating "nice" foods and more to lack of exercise, there is not much stimulation to the intestinal muscles to work. If added to this there is dilated parts, "dropped" parts, then the movement is going to be slower than ever.

Hence indigestion, as it is called.

TROOPERS ARREST MEN

Having received a number of complaints lately the troopers rounded up the gang on Sunday.

COUGH WRETCHES

Peter Gnome was feeling very sad. He was angry, too. You know, how much Peter Gnome loves children and it makes him both angry and sad if children have to have any trouble whatever.

He is always going about, wearing an invisible robe so people cannot see him, trying to do all he can to help children.

He is happiest when children are happy. He is sad when anything goes wrong with them.

He had been busy arguing with the Tonnal Twins, who had been bothering a little friend of his, when he heard that the Whooping Cough Wretches had gone to visit some children in a beautiful town overlooking the sea. He was particularly fond of these children.

In fact he didn't know any children of whom he was more fond than these two children. In particular whose names were John and Gordon.

Gordon was very little—not little for his age, but little compared to his older brother, John. Gordon was not so very old. He had not been in the world very long, but every minute and every day since he had been in the world he had been growing more wonderful.

Peter Gnome thought he was very wonderful. He loved the look of his straight little back and sturdy legs. He liked the way his bright golden hair curled up a little at the ends.

"You Wretches," He Said.

He liked him when he was not looking at his back but when his face was to be seen, for his face, thought Peter Gnome, was just about as all right as a face could be.

Gordon was not called Gordon very often though it was his real name. He was usually called Honey or something very affectionate.

It was even hard not to call him Baby, though he was a baby no longer. But he was lovely and sweet and appealing in much the same way that a baby is lovely and sweet and appealing.

When he was fast asleep he looked so adorable. Oh, how adorable he looked then. And when he woke up and his gay voice could be heard all over the house he seemed even more adorable. He was always suddenly so wide-awake and so bright.

John was a splendid boy, fine and unselfish, manly and admirable in every way, which meant, of course, that Peter Gnome admired him hugely. Peter could never have told you whether he thought more of John than of Gordon, or more of Gordon than of John.

Yet perhaps because John had been in the world longer than Gordon he was a trifle fonder of John. He had had more time in which to grow fond of John.

And now those wretched wretches of Whooping Cough creatures had gone, without being invited, to see John and Gordon. They took their whoope along with them. True, John and Gordon and their mother and daddy were always welcoming friends to the house, but when those wretches came along no one wanted them at all.

They played their same mean games. Every so often they made John give a whooping cough and they did the same thing with Gordon.

Peter Gnome rushed off to see them. "You wretches!" he said. "You mean, mean wretches, to come and play your horrid games in the house where John and Gordon live, and even when they go out into their back garden you follow them along."

The Whooping Cough Wretches are such wretches that they like to be mean. That just shows you what they are like. And they laughed at Peter Gnome and made John whoop and then made Gordon whoop.

"You should be ashamed of yourselves," said Peter Gnome.

"Whoop, whoop, whoop," cackled the Whooping Cough Wretches.

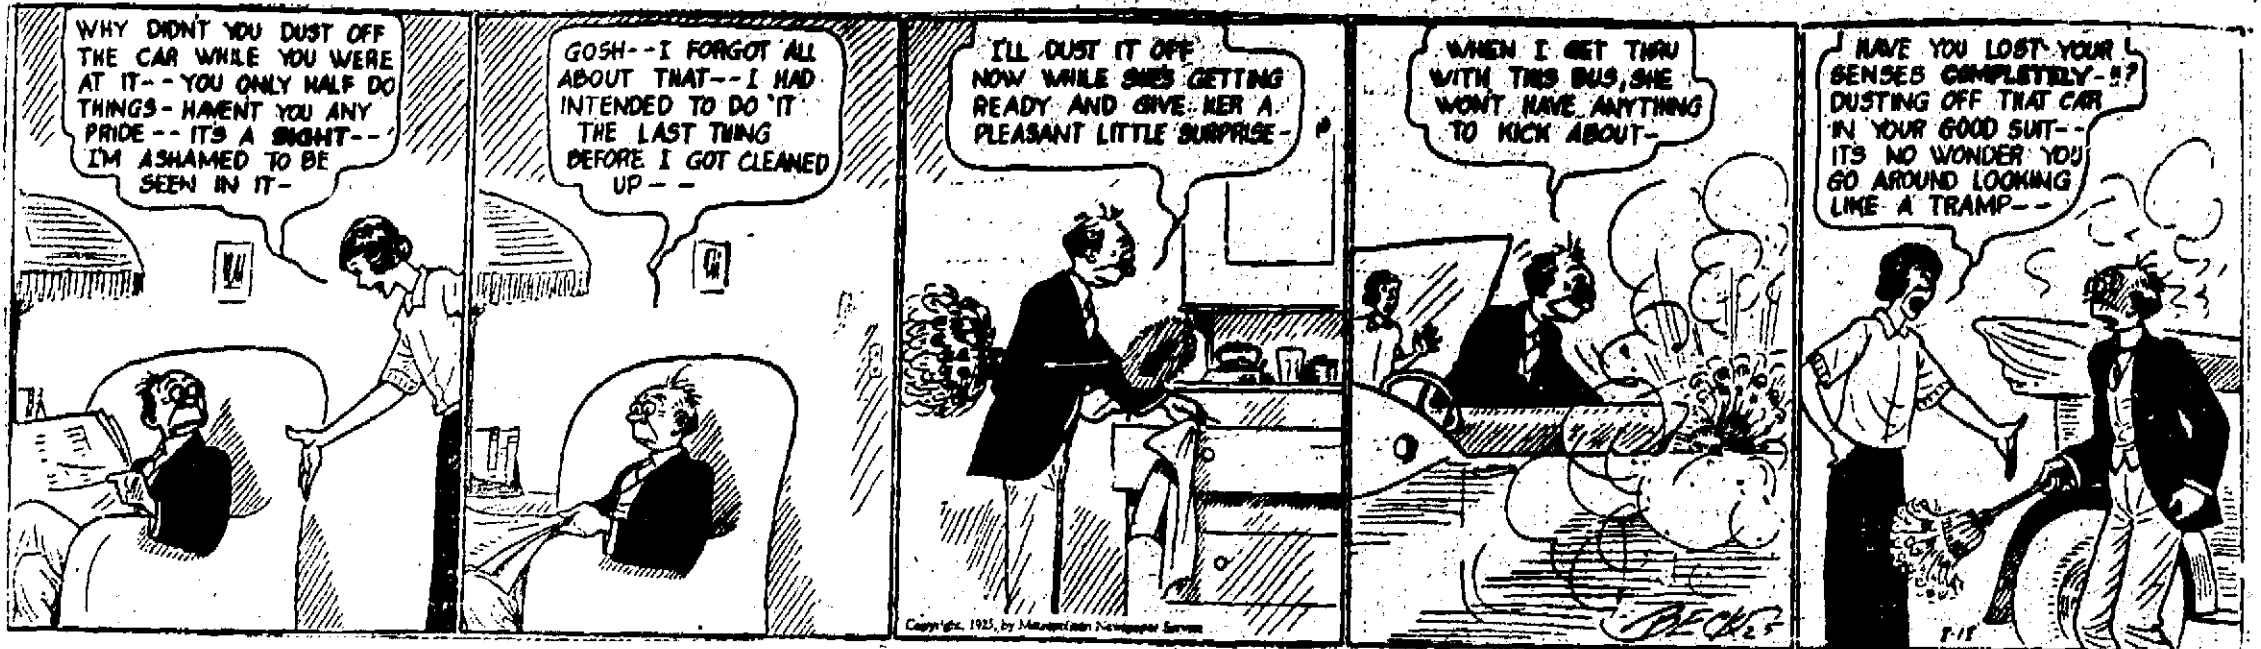

"Oh, you have been here long enough now, do for pity's sake, leave my two friends, John and Gordon, alone now."

Well, they didn't mind when they were called wretches, they were never ashamed of themselves, but when Peter Gnome suggested they had been around long enough they thought to themselves that maybe they were tired of playing here, and they began to pack up their things and leave. And as they began to pack to leave Peter Gnome said:

"And you never, never, never come back again."

Lovely Scarf and Hat
A lovely scarf and a hat of green and white silk repeat the pattern of the old marble papers that are found in the front and back of old books. The scarf is triangular and finished with two long tassels.

GAS BUCCIES—You Can't Please Some People.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY The Fall of Quebec.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

ALL DURING THE SUMMER OF 1759 WOLFE BESIEGED QUEBEC BUT WITHOUT RESULT, AND FINALLY DECIDED TO STAKE HIS HOPES OF VICTORY ON A BOLD STROKE. ON THE NIGHT OF SEPTEMBER 12, MOVING WITH GREAT STEALTH, HE LANDED WITH A FORCE ON THE QUEBEC SIDE OF THE RIVER AT A DESERTED SPOT ABOVE THE TOWN.

WOLFE HAD PREVIOUSLY PICKED OUT A POINT IN THE ROCKY CLIFFS THAT ROSE HIGH ABOVE THE RIVER THAT COULD BE SCALED, AND WHEN DAWN CAME THE FRENCH WERE ALARMED TO DISCOVER 4000 RED COATS MARCHING TO THE ATTACK ON THE PLAINS OF ABRAHAM BEHIND THE TOWN.

MONTREAL, WITH THE FLOWERS OF HIS TROOPS, MARCHED OUT TO MEET THE ATTACK BUT AFTER A PIERCE STRUGGLE, THE FRENCH LINE WAVED BEFORE THE ONslaught OF THE BRITISH AND HE WAS FORCED TO RETREAT.

A FEW MOMENTS LATER THE GALLANT MARQUIS DE MONTREAL ALSO RECEIVED A FATAL WOUND AND DIED BEFORE THE CITY SURRENDERED. THE VICTORIOUS BRITISH TROOPS OCCUPIED QUEBEC AND ITS FALL CAUSED THE COLLAPSE OF THE FRENCH RESISTANCE IN THE WAR.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

In cutting raisins or candied peel, rub a bit of butter over the chopping knife or the scissors to keep them from becoming sticky. Marshmallows will cut into pieces quickly with the scissors dipped into cold water occasionally.

Fry spring chickens by putting (after cutting into serving-sized pieces) into a deep Scotch kettle with a tablespoonful of oil or butter, add a little fat if needed. Cook until tender, well covered, adding a teaspoonful of water when needed. Season well when partly cooked and cook until well-browned. Cooked this way chicken will be tender and juicy. Long, slow cooking brings out the flavor.

Pour hot coffee from the breakfast pot into the saucers of the geranium plants once or twice a week. The coffee cools before it reaches the roots and a wealth of beautiful blossoms will reward the effort.

Coffee grounds worked into the soil around ferns and other plants will lighten the soil.

Rinse and save all pieces of paraffin taken from jelly glasses. Keep in an old coffee pot and when ready to use, melt and pour over the glasses.

When food is burnt on in a granite or aluminum dish, dust a thick coating of soda over the bottom, cover with water and let stand for a few hours, then remove all deposit with steel wool. If this does not remove the spots add a little lye and let stand a few minutes; this will usually clean the most obstinate deposits.

A few drops of muriatic acid added to water to wash brasses will remove all stains. Rinse well and rub with oil; polish with a chamois skin.

Asparagus, peas, beans, if left from dinner, may be rinsed with cold water and added to the salad for luncheon the next day.

Make a practice of using a card index. Housekeeping is a business and should be carried on in a business-like way.

Unicontrol Gets All Wave Lengths

One Dial Regenerative Receiver That Is Very Satisfactory.

So much trouble has been encountered by the use of regenerative receivers in an oscillating condition, says a writer in Radio Digest, that I designed a one-dial regenerative receiver which will not oscillate if handled properly and yet brings in all wave lengths with maximum regeneration and this by tuning only one dial.

The circuit is one generally used in regenerative receivers and uses a three-circuit tuner. My tuner was homemade, basket type winding and the tickler shaft is a celluloid knitting needle. The diagram shows how regeneration was obtained with the one dial. The guide for the tickler control plunger is a short piece of knitting needle drilled through it to allow the plunger to slide easily.

A rubber band was hooked over a pin in the tickler shaft and given a turn around the shaft and the end fastened to the baseboard so as to give a twisting motion to the tickler shaft and cause the plunger to ride firmly but lightly on the edge of the dial.

Builder Must Use Care.
The builder must use great care in cutting the regeneration curve on the dial; use a small file and penknife and try the dial often to see that you are not cutting too deep in spots.

When the curve is properly cut there will be a light hissing sound as the dial is turned over the entire scale but no clicks, as these denote oscillation of the tube. Be sure the filament rheostat is turned on far enough when cutting the curve or you may not get it exactly right.

If by mistake you cut the dial too deeply in places and cause the tube to oscillate at these points, slip the tickler back slightly on the shaft so the tube does not oscillate at these points and work the high-points down slowly until the tube is on the verge of oscillation over the whole scale. When cutting the curve on the dial have aerial and ground connected as for receiving, and be very careful to get the dial on the shaft in the same position each time when putting it on for trial.

Will Not Oscillate.
This receiver will not oscillate when in use unless the filament is turned on brighter than when the regeneration curve was cut.

The tickler plunger is made from No. 14 copper wire and is flattened on the end which rests on the dial. A little grease on the edge of the dial makes it run smoother.

You Should Know How to Charge Your Battery

A storage battery can only be charged by a direct current, and when charging the positive wire of the charging current must be connected to the positive of the battery and the negative to the negative. The voltage of the charging current should be somewhat greater than that of the battery, while the amperage should not be above one-tenth of the capacity. When a battery is charged or discharged very quickly it will overheat, and the paste will fall out of the grids. Not only will this prevent the battery from taking a charge, but it will short circuit the plates at the bottom. For this reason the battery must be charged slowly.

Directions for Connections

The best arrangement for the wiring of a set detector tube is to connect the filament side of the secondary circuit to the negative terminal of the detector tube socket. When a hard tube such as the UV-201-A is used as a detector the filament wire from the secondary circuit should be connected to the positive socket terminal. Remember this point as well as the resistance of the rheostat when you change from one tube to the other.

Why Wait?

Make your will while you are in good health. It is only when you are ill that the making of a will is depressing. A will is not a death warrant, and there is no reason to be superstitious about it.

RADIO

The Freedom Reflex, Which Has Only Two Controls. Panel Has Two Dials for These, One Switch, and One Jack.

By CAPT. P. V. O'DOURKE, in Radio World.

Many persons constantly inquire for a nonradiating three-tube set that still can give a good selectivity and volume. They do not want regeneration, because the set is for general family use, including children, and they are afraid that lack of care in tuning will cause neighbors considerable annoyance. And, besides, the controls are limited by the inquirers to only two, on the plea that no member of the family has more than two hands.

It is really surprising that so little attention has been paid generally to the hookup, which is probably the most stable and satisfactory three-tube reflex that you could build for aerial operation. Factory-made products, using only three tubes, may accomplish more, because reflexing, especially inverse reflexing, is a fine art. But the set shown will cause no trouble, either during building or afterward, and a reflex with the trouble element taken out must indeed be inviting.

List of Parts.

Two radio-frequency transformers, L1L2, L3L4.

Two .0005 mfd. variable condensers, C1, C2.

Three sockets.

Two 4 inch dials.

Two dial pointers.

Three 1A Amperites (for 201A tubes).

Fixed condensers, C3, .00025 mfd.; C4, .0001 mfd.; C5 and C6, .001 mfd.

One 2-megohm grid leak, R2.

Two audio-frequency transformers.

One single-circuit jack.

One battery switch, S.

One 7 by 18 inch panel.

Accessories: One 7 by 17-inch base board aerial wire, ground clamp, lightning arrester, lead-in wire, cabinet, speaker, A and B batteries, jack plug, four UV 201A, C 201A or DV2 tubes, terminal strip, internal connecting wire, hardware.

Set Needs No Neutralizing.

Why no neutralizing? you may ask.

First, because none should be necessary with any one stage of radio-frequency amplification. It's the second RF stage that compels the inclusion of some stabilizing device, like a balancing condenser, potentiometer, plate resistance or the like. If by any chance oscillations do occur where not wanted—which would be only below 450 meters—the neutralizing condenser may be inserted. However, I have built several of these sets; neutralization never was necessary, hence I will not include directions for neutralization tap, etc.

There are only two coils to make, one for the aerial circuit (L1L2), the other for the interstage coupling (L3L4).

This circuit is characterized by freedom from squawking, freedom from difficulty in construction or operation, and freedom from excessive number of controls. Therefore it is called the Freedom reflex, which has a timely touch to it, too.

No rheostats are employed, the resistance elements in the filament minus lead being amperites suited to the tubes employed. It is all right to use the amperite in the detector stage of this circuit. Thus one switch controls the entire filament lighting. As the set is designed for speaker operation, no phone jack is provided.

The Panel.

The set may be constructed on a 7 by 18 inch panel. The panel may be divided horizontally, with a line 3 inches from the top, and the center holes for the condenser shafts drilled 4 1/2 inches from extreme left and extreme right, respectively. The only objects appearing on the panel are the switch S, the dials and the jack. The switch may be of the push-pull type, but if you can get the toggle kind with a small mounting hole required, that works more smoothly. The usual toggle switch (left and right or up and down motion) requires too big a panel hole. I inch or so, and few have the instrument necessary to drill this, or care for such a big "dent" in the panel.

The switch should be placed at a point near the A-plus line to the terminal strip (blinding posts).

The aerial coil is made of No. 22 double cotton covered wire on a 3/4 inch diameter, either tubing or basket-weave, L1 consisting of 17 turns and L2 of 45 turns, each winding separate and distinct, and the separation between 3/4 inch. L3 is wound also on a 3/4 inch diameter, consisting of 12 turns of the same kind of wire, L4 having 45 turns. If after the set is in operation, it is found that C1 has higher dial readings than C2, then remove a turn or two from L4, until the two dials read together. The variable condensers should be of the same make and capacity, .0005 mfd.

The coils should be mounted at right angles to each other, the aerial coil (L1L2) usually being most conveniently placed at left rear of baseboard, with coil axis parallel with the baseboard (the coil lengthwise, running in the direction of the panel width of 18 inches). The other coil may be placed to the right of C2, with form bottom secured to the baseboard with angles.

The connections to the coils should be such that ground and F-minus connections in the aerial circuit RFT are adjacent and B-plus and positive A connections in the interstage coupler are adjacent.

C3 is the grid condenser, C4, C5 and C6 being by-pass condensers. These by-pass condensers in some cases, probably many cases, may be omitted entirely, but if volume isn't what you feel it should be, put them in, and your solution is found. Sometimes there is enough automatic by-passing. If there isn't, then you need the fixed condensers.

The condenser C4 is physically mounted across the secondary of the first audio transformer.

Only Two Dials Need Be Adjusted to Tune

The wiring diagram of one of the simplest possible regenerative circuits will be found in this column. This circuit is ideal for portable use, as it can be made very compact and is very easy to operate. As may be seen from the diagram only two dials need be adjusted to tune the set. They are the variometer, which controls the regeneration, and the condenser, which controls the wave length.

The parts required for the construction of this portable are:

One variometer (150 to 550 meters).

One variable condenser (.0005 mfd.).

One grid condenser (.00025 mfd.).

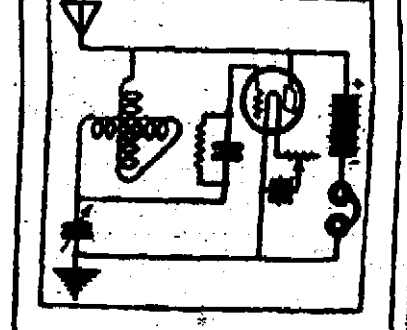

Diagram Showing Circuit, Ideal for Portable Use.

One grid leak (approximately 5 megohms).

One UV-100 or C-200 tube.

One 4 1/2-volt A battery.

One 22 1/2-volt B battery.

One 50-ohm rheostat.

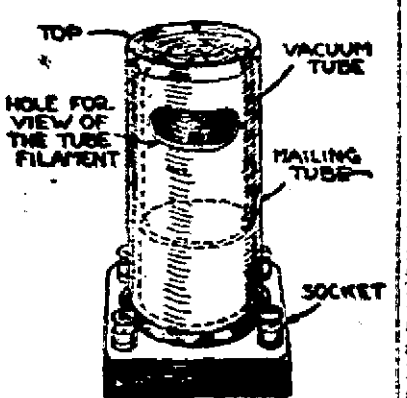

One UV-100 socket.

Panel cabinet, binding posts, etc.

When building this circuit two things should be remembered: First, that UV-100 tubes give best results in sets of this type, and second, that a phone by-pass condenser must not be used. Also, when operating the set, take care not to short-circuit the aerial and ground posts, as this also short-circuits the "B" battery.—New York Herald-Tribune.

Tube Covers Protect Against Dropped Tool

Many a tube has been broken by something falling on it. This can be avoided by slipping a section of a mailing tube over it and closing the upper end. A hole is cut in the side for a clear view of the filament.—Radio Digest.

How Mailing Case May Be Used to Protect Tube.

Round-Nose Pliers

One of the most useful tools for the radio constructor is a pair of small, round-nose pliers. With pliers of this type you can bend wire into any shape desired and form perfect loops on their ends to clamp under the binding posts of instruments that are not supplied with soldering lugs.

Forum Talks Gain In Popularity

Employees of Various Industrial Concerns in Kingston and Vicinity Are Spreading Gospel That "He Profits Most Who Serves Best."

The Forum of Fundamentals campaign being conducted under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce is becoming more and more popular. Monday was a busy day for Mr. Sheldon, the head of this new department of Chamber of Commerce work. At 1 o'clock he addressed the employees of the United States Lacey Company. At 4 o'clock he addressed a special meeting of the employees of the Van Motor Company. Mr. Schenck and his entire staff were present. In the evening at 7 o'clock a meeting was held of the entire staff of the Sutcliffe, Inc. organization.

Mr. Sheldon's talk was on the efficiency formula at both the meetings at Mr. Schenck's and Mr. Sutcliffe's. In this talk he made plain seven natural laws of man power development.

His talk in the evening with the Sutcliffe staff was only a part of the evening's program. This company is furnishing a series of illustrated lantern lectures which are both interesting and instructive.

Talks to Bank Employees.

Today, Mr. Sheldon spoke in Saugerties and at 4 o'clock this afternoon to the staff of the State of New York National Bank. This evening he speaks at a joint meeting of both branches of the Kingston Trust Company.

The public service thus rendered through the Chamber of Commerce is far reaching and as a whole is reaching large numbers of people. The public work given by Mr. Sheldon stresses the two natural laws of service and conservation; the gospel he "He Profits Most Who Serves Best," and also the gospel of conservation is being taught to hundreds and directly and indirectly to thousands of the people of Kingston and vicinity.

In his work Mr. Sheldon is simplifying and teaching from a scientific view point the old aphorism: Waste not, Want not. To this he adds Waste not, Want not, and then specifies four things: time, energy, money and material.

It is evidently true that the material wastefully wasted in American industry could almost pay dividends on the entire capitalization of industry.

Follow Example of Nature.

Mr. Sheldon makes it plain that nature wastes nothing. Coal that is now so valuable was once rotten wood. Nature did not waste it, however. She stored it up and it is now valuable.

Mr. Sheldon's teachings show the difference between selfishness and self-interest and also between conservation and stinginess or parsimony. The individual and the institution that conforms to the two laws of service and conservation does not have to be stingy or parsimonious. There

The Premier of the World's Master Minds in Dress Provide a Lively Topic Just Now.

At this time of year fashion talk is largely centered around what was shown at the haute couture openings, those important occasions when buyers from department stores, specialty shops and wholesale houses pack Paris to overflowing to see how the great dressmakers of the world are interpreting fashions—always an expression of the time.

This presentation is always stimulating, even though the models presented may leave one cold to their charm. Or perhaps one is more often alive to their charm but cold in contemplation of actual adoption.

Ensemble from Philippe et Gaston Exploits the Barrel Silhouette in Sleeve as Well as Skirt Treatment. The Coat is Navy Reps With Blue Cere Braid Trimming and the Dress Which Follows Its Contour is Developed in Silk With Similar Ornamentation.

There are, of course, differences of opinion, but the haute couture, as a whole, is more or less of a mind. There is a general sponsorship of velvets, of rich color, of soft wool, and of a lavish application of fur and trimming generally.

At the summer openings sports clothes were starred. Winter functions being more important than sports, consequently the collections accent elaboration of detail.

The idea that all our coats and frocks should be so cut is ridiculous. The fact that if so desired, they may be so designed, is refreshing, for with the restlessness which is characteristic of the times, we demand change even in the matter of silhouette and absolutely frown on retaining the straightline, except when we are in a mood for it.

Practical Frocks for Summer Wear

It is Important That Buyer Should Know Advantage of Color.

A great deal is heard about "serviceable" colors, especially at this time of the year, when one is engaged in shopping for colorful and practical frocks for summer wear. It is more of a problem now than at any other season, for the intensity of the summer sun is not tempered with the winter's frost, and knows no mercy in extracting its toll either from delicate colors or complexions.

Do you know how to select a color that will be serviceable? Strictly speaking, a color is serviceable when it "does not show dirt," and holds its color well.

Now, there are several things upon which such serviceability depends, and knowing some of these points will help us to judge the practical value of a color before buying the garment, or the material to make up.

Shoppers seldom look back of the manufacture of the materials they buy, and yet it is very important in this case, for the dependability of the color hangs first of all upon the kind of fiber from which the goods were made. For instance, when we know that linen fades most, cotton next and wool and silk least of all, there are several things which we can understand better.

It is no puzzle at all, then, why the cotton-and-wool mixed suit which we bought did not hold its color well, for we know that cotton threads do not take the dyes so well as the all-wool.

When it comes to the color itself, one should remember that all the delicate shades, pinks, greens and lavenders, are likely to give the most trouble, since they not only fade with washing, but in the strong sunlight. Fairly dark colors are more economical in that they stay clean

Whiskers Will Decide Lawsuit

WHY

Business of Parents Are Not Indulged

One Involves $250,000 and the Other $100,000. Are They Worth the Trouble? They Were Not.

In Kingston, Aug. 15.—The Thomas Gainsborough, famous English artist, was hounded by the press. Whether he did will decide the case of Bradford Perin, California collector, that he is the owner of a genuine Gainsborough, painted by the artist himself and showing Gainsborough with a sketchy manner.

While final decision as to the alleged Gainsborough has not been made, now Perin's first views as to his painting were blasted were told in the witness stand here in a suit in which Perin was defendant for $250,000 alleged due for a commission in identifying the painting, found in an antique shop, as an original.

E. J. Squadrilli, art critic and expert, pronounced the painting in question a portrait of Gainsborough, himself and valued at $200,000. Perin and his attorney attempted to show that in spirit, depicted a man with side whiskers and that side whiskers were not worn until 1800 years after Gainsborough's time.

Squadrilli, who was plaintiff in the suit, called an expert witness, Gordon Earl, who said the hair on a portrait painter for 40 years, that many trips to Europe and that he had studied all the old masters. He pronounced the painting in question a Gainsborough portrait.

Squadrilli was employed by Perin to clean and restore the painting, and after he had done so he pronounced it a Gainsborough, and Perin believed he had discovered a painting worth a fortune. He placed it in a bank vault, he testified, and insured it for $200,000 and then placed another policy of $30,000 on it when he took it to London to the auctioneer. There, he said, he was informed by experts that it was a portrait of Sir Thomas Lawrence, and he then took it to the Royal Academy.

Earl stated when he brought the picture back he considered the insurance on it, accepted it as a portrait of Sir Thomas Lawrence and offered it for sale for $250,000.

She used to first when she was in the car, because she had nothing to put on. Now she says because she has nothing to take off.

A lot of women in Florida and California would have been millionaires for that evolution trial.

Because you can't keep cool this hot weather, don't get hot at all your friends.

The difference between a right and a wrong is that you can reach a right and make it shell out.

One trouble is that not enough of parents are on speaking terms with their children.

A dollar is a dead one, whose movement has been delayed.

Immediately.

Do not criticize. This advice, oh, my son, stay in front of a mile and stay back of a gun.

"What a nice large closet," said the apartment hunter as she looked into the living room.

Mr. String: "Are you the bookish who think my shoes that?" Bookish (disgustedly): "No, I have only been here a year."

The only thing that makes the pleasure of some fishermen is having a cup to dip out.

"I lost the coat, it's the apiece that worries me," said the shaver as he rolled her nose.

More Important.

The question that should mean the most.

If anything we you are "Where did you strike from?"

"What are you going to?"

—Honest, Tom, Post-Dispatch. In some through always comes to me.

May I the subject touch?"

But I've a change of feel or a change of a word."

Don't talk like a fool. That image always the vocabulary of a failure, in the opinion of others.

The world's easiest task is not to be a politician.

One Thought At a Time

By Arthur Frederick Shelton.

"UNIVERSAL CONCRETE"

It is a well known fact that it takes two kinds of material to make concrete. First, the hard particles of crushed rock and sand, second, cement. No one can make the composite thing concrete without both the hard particles and the cement. It is just so in the manufacture of the "concrete" with which to pave the path to power.

The hard facts about the individual job may well be likened to the particles of crushed rock and sand in concrete. They are essential.

But so is the application of certain universal laws which apply to all jobs and all phases of human activity. A knowledge of these universal laws may well be likened to the "universal cement" in concrete.

It is the conscious application of them which brings reward, conscious or unconscious failure to apply them brings gradual failure.

The success of the institution is the sum of the successes of the people on the payroll. It is not only the duty, but a very great to the best interests of the employer to teach the employee the universal law of success as well as the hard facts about his or her particular work.

The old time out of date policy of "there is your job, sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish," is no longer human and cruel and also tremendously expensive. The practice of fire and fire and fire, and fire and fire, until a fairly good force is finally gotten together, is out of date and has been responsible for much of our industrial unrest. It pays the employer to fulfill his educational duty.

BENEDICT ARNOLD SHOWN A QUITTER

Enraged by Fancied Slight,
He Offered to Resign
Early in War.

Worcester, Mass.—Two historic documents, hitherto unpublished, bearing upon the troublous fortunes of Benedict Arnold in his early experiences in the Continental army, in the preliminary days of the Revolutionary war, have come to light in the library of the American Antiquarian society here. One is the original written commission issued to Arnold by the Massachusetts committee of safety at Cambridge in May, 1775, authorizing him to organize an expedition against Ticonderoga. The other is a letter written by Arnold, in aggrieved tone, to the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts Bay, late in June of the same year, resigning his commission after a committee had been appointed by the congress to investigate his conduct. Both documents, despite the intervening 150 years, are as perfectly legible as when penned.

Immediately after news of the battles of Lexington and Concord had spread through New England, late in April, 1775, Benedict Arnold, whose intrepidity as a fighter was undisputed, notwithstanding his treason later in the war, hastened from his home in Connecticut with a company of recruits to get into the fray. At that time the attempted capture of Forts Ticonderoga and Crown Point was talked of in the colonies as part of a strategic scheme to shut off the Canadian governor general, Sir Guy Carleton, who planned to force his way with troops to New York.

Arnold Plans Attack

Benedict Arnold, inspired with the idea of taking the forts himself, obtained on May 3 a commission from the committee of safety appointing him colonel and authorizing him to raise an army in Massachusetts and elsewhere in the New England colonies and to proceed, as its commander, to attempt to take Ticonderoga. The commission, as it appears in the archives of the American Antiquarian society, reads as follows:

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, May 3, 1775.

To Benedict Arnold, Esq., Commander of a Body of Troops on an expedition to subdue and take possession of the Fort Ticonderoga.

Sir—Confiding in your judgment, fidelity and valor, we do by these presents constitute and appoint you colonel and commander in chief over a body of men not exceeding four hundred; to proceed with all expedition to the western parts of this and the neighboring colonies, where you are directed to enlist those men and with them forthwith to march to the fort at Ticonderoga and use your best endeavor to reduce the same, taking possession of the cannon, mortars, stores, etc., upon the lake; you are to bring back with you such of the cannon, mortars, stores, etc., which you shall judge may be serviceable to the army, leaving behind what may be necessary to secure that port with a sufficient garrison. You are to procure suitable provisions and stores for the army and draw upon the Committee of Safety for the amount thereof, and to act in every exigency according to your best skill and discretion for the public interest, for which this shall be your sufficient warrant.

(Signed) BENJAMIN CHURCH. Armed with the commission, Arnold hurried off to the mountain regions of Vermont, intending to recruit men from among the mountaineers. But he encountered a cold rebuff. Ethan Allen, with the capture of Ticonderoga as his own goal, had already raised an army of "Green Mountain Boys," acting under a commission from the Colony of Connecticut. Allen abruptly waved aside Arnold's authority from the Massachusetts committee of safety to head the expedition, and, after a bitter wrangle, Arnold, unable to raise his troops, had to accept the altogether disagreeable alternative of joining Allen's forces as a private in the ranks.

After the capture of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, Arnold insisted that he assume command, and again there was a violent dispute between him and Allen. Upon the juncture being reported to the Colony of Connecticut, it was agreed, with the assent of the Massachusetts committee of safety, that Allen retain command. Arnold, angered over this, got together an expedition of his own and made a sortie to St. John, Canada, which he captured. Later, on his return to Crown Point, he was "waited upon by a delegation from the Massachusetts Provincial congress. When informed by the delegation that it was there to investigate Arnold's "capacity and conduct," Arnold flew into a tempestuous rage and ordered the delegation out.

Letter Sent to Congress

Later, Arnold, smarting under what he considered unfair treatment, sent this letter to the Provincial congress, embodying his resignation:

Crown Point, June 24, 1775.

Gentlemen: Your instructions of the 14th inst. from the Provincial Congress of the Massachusetts Bay in regard to my conduct, and command here, being now before me, I will answer in course.

In the first place I observe you are appointed to examine my conduct and in what manner I have executed my commission. I look on this instruction at this juncture as unprecedented, and a very plain intimation that the congress are dubious of my fortitude or abilities, which is a sufficient inducement for me to decline serving them longer.

Secondly, the congress have authorized you to judge of my spirit, capacity and conduct, and determine whether I shall continue in commission, and if so that I shall be under the command of a person appointed by the Colony of Connecticut. In answer to the first part, it appears to me very extraordinary that the congress should first appoint an officer, and afterwards, when he had executed their commission, appoint a committee to examine if he was fit for his post. I think the examination should have been prior to the commission. After executing that commission, that they should order a younger officer of the same rank to take the command of the fortresses and vessels be conquered, plainly indicates the loss of their confidence and is a most disgraceful reflection on him and the body of troops he commands, which is a sufficient inducement to resign; not to mention the very great hardship on the private men, who having served well near two months are now to be mustered and if by sickness or hard labor they are reduced and not fit for service and do not pass muster, they are to lose their former town haven and be reduced to the distress of buying their bread until they can get home to their friends.

The last objection I have to make is that I have so far lost the confidence of the congress that they have declined sending me money as was promised by Captain Brown to discharge the small and unavoidable debts I have contracted, for necessities for the use of the army, for which my own credit is at stake while I am reduced to the necessity of leaving the place with dishonor, or waiting until I can send home and discharge those debts out of my private purse, the latter of which I am determined to do, though I have already advanced 100 pounds of money out of my private purse. All which reasons I believe will be thought a sufficient inducement for me to decline holding my commission longer.

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

To Walter Spooner, Jedidiah Foster &amp; James Sullivan, Esq.

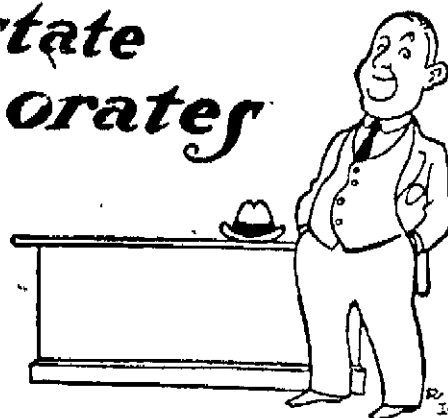

After dispatching the letter to Cambridge, Arnold went there himself and, later in the summer, was given command of forces which, after a notable march through the primeval forest of Maine, seized the fortress of Quebec. General Richard Montgomery, who had joined his forces with those of Arnold in the attack on Quebec, was killed, while Arnold, badly wounded, was obliged to withdraw.

It was five years later that Arnold, then a major general, in command at West Point, turned traitor to his country in revenge for what he considered his humiliation by the Continental congress, by scheming to surrender the great West Point fortress to the British, and thus give the enemy strategic control of the Hudson river.

FINAL LINK IN VICTORY HIGHWAY OPENED

Scruggs of Nevada digging away the salt barrier and linking up the transcontinental Victory highway after the road had been built over the crust of the salt desert west of Salt Lake City. SUMS SPENT FOR HIGHWAY TRAVEL

Much Money Spent for New Motor Vehicles and for Their Upkeep.

In most people's minds the amount of money spent for highway travel in a state is usually thought of only as the money invested in highway improvement. Yet that item in a state's transportation bill is always the smallest in comparison to the sums spent for new motor vehicles and for their operation and upkeep.

Of Value to Car Owner.

An interesting tabulation published in the South Carolina Highway Bulletin for January, 1925, sheds some light on this matter which is of value to the motor car owner.

During the year 1924 there was expended in South Carolina approximately:

- For new motor vehicles .. $25,000,000
- For gasoline .. 16,000,000
- For oil, tire repairs and upkeep of motor vehicles .. 21,000,000

This makes a total outlay in 1924 for motor vehicle operation of $62,000,000. Also there has been expended some $7,000,000 for road construction and maintenance, which is as much a part of motor vehicle operation as is the buying of oil or gasoline. The sums used for road purposes were furnished in part from gasoline taxes and motor vehicle license fees. In addition to these there have been expended about $2,000,000 in the improvement of city streets. Altogether, including miscellaneous and depreciation not covered by replacements, the total bill for highway transport in South Carolina for 1924 was approximately $75,000,000.

Equals Value of Crops.

This one item alone is equal to about one-half the value of all the crops produced in the state during the same year and it constitutes a very large proportion of the total budget for living expenses. The portion actually spent for highway improvement is only 12 per cent of the total transportation bill, yet it is in the building of better highways that lasting and definite economies are made in the largest item in the bill—the cost of operating and maintaining the motor vehicles.

Sudden Application of Brakes Is Bad Practice

The sudden application of automobile brakes and the consequent sliding of the wheels cause those worn spots on the tread of the tires which result in their being discarded long before they are really worn out. If the brakes are applied firmly but gently the car will be stopped as quickly, but without the disastrous results on the rear wheels which comes from jamming on the brakes. It would prevent the locking of the rear wheels, which causes the wheels to slide.

When the car is at a dead stop there is, of course, no wear on the tires, as there is no motion to produce external friction, the tire being in perfect contact with the road. If the car is started gently and slowly and nursed up to the proper speed the tire remains as nearly as possible the perfect contact with the road. Friction is held at a minimum and wear unretarded.

How Owners Can Easily Test the Fuel Mixture

Car owners, particularly new ones, are often puzzled to know whether the mixture they are using is correct. To ascertain the correct proportions to be used, shut off the fuel at the tank and open the throttle. If the mixture that is going to the cylinders is too rich, the engine speed will increase as the level of the gasoline in the float chamber is lowered, since the operation weakens the mixture considerably. If the mixture is suspected of being too weak, the float chamber may be flooded while the engine is running, and if the engine speeds up, it may be accepted as a sign that the mixture has not been rich enough.

Don't Bump Tires

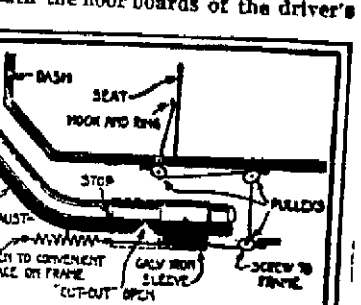

When a car that is rolling along at a speed of 25 miles an hour strikes a stone or bad bump the tire receives a blow at the point of impact of nine or ten tons in force. Many drivers who would regard it as an insupportable proposition to strike one of their inflated tires a blow with a ten-ton hammer ride merrily along day after day in their cars, taking no pains whatever to avoid bumps. Even the best tires give way in time under such treatment. A slight turn of the steering wheel when these obstructions are met means the saving of tire expense.

Muffler Cut-Out on Car Necessary for Testing

Nowadays the low-priced car is not provided with a cut-out; in fact it is against the law in many states. It is necessary, however, to have one for testing the engine.

This provides a quickly constructed homemade device for releasing the excess pipe pressure and exhaust gases. It is light, efficient and absolutely practical.

Procure a hack-saw and cut a V-shaped piece out of the exhaust pipe beneath the floor boards of the driver's seat. Fit over the pipe hole a piece of galvanized sheet iron bent round about 2 3/16 inch. The sheet iron is connected in the manner shown in the illustration. The result is a practical cut-out ready for use at any time.—P. P. Avery, in the Popular Science Monthly.

If Your Car Isn't Fitted With a Cut-Out, Make One From a Piece of Sheet Iron.

Obstructed Vacuum Tank Is Easily Cleared Out

Sometimes the vacuum tank of a fuel system remains dry when there is plenty of gasoline in the main tank. Generally this is due to foreign matter making its way into the fuel pipe between the two tanks and obstructing the passage of the liquid. When this is the case the simplest remedy consists of filling the float chamber of the carburetor with gasoline—usually drawn from the main tank—and then starting the engine. This will clear out the pipe line by suction nine times out of ten and the vacuum tank will begin operating again. Sometimes it is necessary to speed up the engine somewhat in order to loosen the obstruction.

Occasionally the cause of the trouble is the stoppage of the small air hole in the filter cap of the main fuel tank. This should be kept open to give play to the pressure of the atmosphere on the fuel.

Noise Is Indication of Trouble for Car Owner

The modern car when properly adjusted is a remarkably quiet running piece of mechanism. Unusual noise is a certain indication of trouble, and, if the owner will not disregard this certain indication of something wrong, but will at once trace the noise and remedy the basic cause of which it is merely a symptom. There is no need of giving this advice to the average driver, because he has learned it by experience, but at this time, when there are many new hands at new steering wheels, we may be permitted to call attention to the fact that noise means trouble in the car's mechanism.

Supreme QUALITY NEW CHRYSLER SIX

At the completion of the first history-making year of Chrysler Six—Walter P. Chrysler pledged himself and his organization to strive earnestly to keep the Chrysler Six as far ahead of the wasteful and commonplace as it stood at that moment.

The new Chrysler Six—at new and lower prices—is the answer to that promise—the result of his engineering and manufacturing genius which never rests satisfied.

While the motoring public acclaim the Chrysler Six as the most phenomenal car ever built, Walter P. Chrysler announces notable improvements in quality—of materials, of performance, of craftsmanship, of equipment, of design.

Greater Power—Increased cylinder bore, resulting in approximately 10 per cent more torque, giving 70 miles per hour with greater ease and quickness than ever before.

Faster Acceleration—5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, power enough to climb the steepest grades and pull through deepest mud or sand, from refined power plant with a still larger crankshaft of 50 per cent greater torsional rigidity.

Remarkable Fuel Economy—Carburetion improved to deliver 20 and more miles per gallon of gasoline, notwithstanding increased power and faster acceleration.

Improved Rear Axle—Ring gears and pinions are larger; differential carrier heavier to handle increased engine power.

Distinctive Color Combinations—Body colors, in Duco, are the most attractive and tasteful ever offered. Chrysler-designed, Fisher-built closed bodies are further refined; attractively low and gracefully rounded.

Extraordinary Equipment—Chrysler equipment is of a quality and completeness rarely found on any car—even the highest priced. It includes Parafloator, which filters all dirt from crankcase oil as the motor runs; Watson Stabilizers, the most efficient and most costly device of its type to absorb the shock of road irregularities; air-cleaner, which removes all road dirt and dust from air entering the engine; thermostat control of water hose for most efficient operation; Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes which provide utmost safety of control; Spartan "308" electric horns; duco durable body finish; balloon tires.

Cold words fail to describe this new Chrysler Six—a car so far beyond any comparison with existing cars that you must know it personally to understand its unsurpassable superiority. That is why we are eager to have you see and drive it for yourself.

A demonstration will prove conclusively to you why today's Chrysler Six strides far ahead of competition.

Rally in Ninth Beat Culloton

Leaders in their respective leagues, the Philadelphia Athletics and the Pittsburgh Pirates, staged an exhibition game Monday at Pittsburgh which was classified by the Pittsburgh fans as a "local world's series" contest, with Bud Culloton, pitcher for the Pirates.

Both clubs are leading their respective leagues in the major league pennant fight and expect to go into the real World's Series this fall. The Athletics didn't hit Bud Culloton as frequently as the Pirates hit the Messrs. Helmach and Groves, but they hit with more consistency and ran bases better, thus gaining the victory.

It was a see-saw contest until the ninth when the American League club went on a batting rampage. The score was deadlocked until the last inning, Bud keeping them from doing much harm, but in the final frame they came at Bud hard and sent around four runs.

Tagging Major League Bases

The Giants picked up a half game on the idle Pirates by plastering the Phillies 3 to 2, Greenfield outpitching Carlson.

Blankenship, turning in his career straight victory, also drove home the tying run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh while the Tigers 3 to 2 was produced by one Davis. This is mentioned because the young man staked the Tigers to the lead with a carefree throw in the third inning.

Stamford Nine Here Tonight

The club from Stamford, Conn., will be at the Fair Grounds tonight for their first bout with the Colonials. This is the first time this season that a team from that state has been matched against the locals.

This Connecticut team has a good record in that section of the country and are apt to give the locals a stiff fight.

Art Smith will be the probable moundman for this contest, as he had more rest than any other member of the pitching staff lately.

Wednesday the locals will travel to Stamford and give this club a return battle.

Freeman Lost To West Shore

The West Shore team defeated The Freeman squad at the Athletic Field Monday night by the score of 10 to 7. The score was tied at the end of the first frame but after that session the railroaders kept in front for the rest of the battle.

The railroaders had a profitable third inning during which they knocked loose six hits and with the assistance of two boos brought their big total of six markers around. Both teams committed six errors which helped considerably in the run making.

Both teams had a strong liking for stolen bases during the battle. A total of 18 bases were gained by this method by the teams.

JOB WAS LOOKING FOR TAX DODGERS

French "Barker" Surely Had Odd Occupation.

I made the gentleman's acquaintance at a way station where both of us were waiting for the trains which were to separate us forever. Both trains were late, as though each were conscious of a desire to postpone the painful parting as long as possible.

The gentleman was much like any other traveler encountered on the trains. That is, he was of a certain age and of medium height. Beyond that it would be difficult for me to give an accurate description of him.

He had opened the conversation with a remark—sensible enough—relative to the weather; and I had returned the courtesy with an economic observation—I believe, the high cost of transportation. Soon we had exchanged quite a number of general remarks, purposely formulated to avoid controversy for which there was no occasion, since we were soon to separate.

However, time passed, and the conversation became of a more personal nature, as both of us felt the necessity for more intimate revelations of our individual accomplishments. We discovered that we both lived in Paris; that he revealed his destination and I mine. We were on the road to confusion, so I was not surprised when he asked my profession.

"I'm a clockmaker," I told him. For some reason the man smiled. Evidently he considered clockmaking a sort of pastime, a hobby, but not a regular profession. Somewhat nettled, I intimated that I was by way of being an expert in my particular line. His smile broadened.

"Well," said I rather snappily, "what are you, pray? What do you do?"

I expected him to say that he was a doctor or a lawyer or a public official or a tenor, or something quite as impressive.

"I," said he, "am a barker."

"A what?"

"A barker, sir, barker."

Now if he had said that he counted the holes in Swiss cheese or was the earthquake editor of a daily newspaper—but it was ridiculous!

"A barker? But where do you bark?"

"Not at all, sir; I am a tax barker."

From my blank expression he evidently realized that explanations were called for. So, with the best grace in the world, he added:

"You see, I bark for the dog tax. Every day I climb the stairs of apartment houses, and, at each landing, I get down on my hands and knees and say 'Woo-woo!' like that. Then, if I hear an answering bark in the apartment, I know they have a dog there. I make a note of the floor and the same evening, turn in my report to the assessor, who looks up the various apartments to see if the dog is properly licensed. If it isn't, I get 20 percent of the fine. I make 100 francs a day."

Deserved to Lose

The late John S. Sargent, the famous American portrait painter, was once obliged to attend an unsavory murder trial in London for the purpose of making certain sketches.

The trial was also attended by many society folk, and one morning, when Mr. Sargent arrived late, he found his seat occupied by a great lady. He said nothing, but at the luncheon hour he ate a very hurried luncheon, and so it came about that when the great lady came back from her own luncheon she found that her place was gone.

She put up her lorgnette, stared at Mr. Sargent haughtily and said: "Dear me, I've lost my seat."

"Madame," said Mr. Sargent, "when a lady so far forgets herself as to attend a trial of this unsavory kind, she is apt to lose both her seat and her standing."

Didn't Want to Hear Papa

Betty and Bobbie were operating the radio. Suddenly from Betty came a scream of delight. "Listen," she cried, "I have San Francisco, and that's where mother said daddy would be today." Bobbie paled a little, but he stood his ground. "Turn that dial," he commanded firmly. "What's the matter with you? Don't you know I broke a window pane today?"

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman
New York, Aug. 18.—The stock market was in a state of confusion today. The high priced industrial and motor shares—"rich men's stocks"—advanced spectacularly, principally because the professionals were bidding against each other. The bulls and bears were savagely arrayed against each other in other parts of the market, with the honors evenly divided. Havana Electric entered the 200 class and White Motors crossed 100 for the first time, while Mack Trucks steadily drew up on its market rival, American Can, selling only about 6 points lower.

Where accumulation is going on it is for the account of professionals or "insiders" who are informed exactly as to the re-capitalization of the companies. American Can has remained a mystery as far as the public is concerned, and so has Mack Trucks and General Electric.

The rally in railroad stocks soon spent its force today. After selling about a point higher, near the opening, the railroad shares lapsed into inactivity.

Under the leadership of Mack Trucks and White Motors, which were linked together in the market gossip, the motor and motor accessories stocks boomed forward shortly after the noon period. Mack jumped 8 points to 237 1/2 and White soared 4 1/2 to 102 1/2.

While the oil stocks were reactionary from the start, there was no heavy drive against the petroleum shares.

Vanity

"A little while ago I read a book on psychology," said a Lakeville farmer. "It said that if you lay a hen down on the floor and then draw a line up to its bill, it will be temporarily hypnotized and stay there for several minutes. Well, sir, I thought I'd try it. I had plenty of hens and a pencil to draw the line, so I brought in a good plump chicken and sat her down. That stunt actually worked. She sat dead still for about three minutes, then sort of shook her head and walked away. But you can't fool me on the hypnotism stuff. That hen simply had her eyes crossed, and being vain like all females, wouldn't get up until she got them straightened out."—Detroit News.

Your Health

By ANDREW F. CURRIER, M. D.

MEDICINES, DIGESTION

DIGESTION is the preparation of the food for absorption and distribution to the cells which make up the body.

Whatever is taken into the body must undergo certain changes before it can be appropriated as food or fuel. Meat, fish, bread, vegetables must be chewed to a pulp, moistened and partly digested by the saliva, churned about in the stomach and further liquefied by the juices of the stomach, pancreas, liver and intestines before they are in a suitable condition to be taken in by the myriads of little absorbers which have their openings in the intestine.

The liquid fats and oils must undergo emulsification, which divides them into countless globules of infinitesimal size before they can be absorbed; milk must have its cheese and butter digested, and even water may be called upon to submit to physical or chemical change before it can become a part of the blood stream. Meat, eggs, fish and other substances known as proteins or albuminoids, including the cheese of milk, are digested in the stomach by the fluid made in the glands of that organ called gastric juice, consisting essentially of weak hydrochloric acid and a ferment of enzyme called pepsin.

Vegetables, a certain percentage of the cereals, fats and oils known collectively as carbohydrates, are digested in the small intestine, the starch in the vegetables being changed by the ferment provided by the pancreas, and the fats and oils being emulsified partly by the same means and partly by the action of the bile which flows into the intestine from the liver.

Not until the food has experienced these changes can it be absorbed from the intestine, conveyed into the blood stream, and transported over the body. When this process is not properly carried out, digestive medicine must be used to help out nature's deficiencies.

For this purpose the secretions from the digestive organs of slaughtered animals, which are identical with those obtained from the same organs in man, are used, these organs being properly treated in chemical laboratories to obtain their contents as soon as possible after being removed from the animal.

From the digestive organs of slaughtered cattle, sheep and hogs, commercial pepsin, pancreatin and bile are thus obtained and they are then made into pharmaceutical preparations in the form of powders, tablets, pills and fluids.

The extracts and powders being most like the secretion that was present in the living animals, are apt to be more efficient as aids to digestion than wines, elixirs, tinctures, and tablets. In many cases they are combined with an antiseptic substance to prevent decomposition, and this is important because animal substances decompose quickly.

There is frequently a date on the package stating the time limit for using the contents, but this cannot always be depended upon; for heat and moisture may cause the ferment to decompose long before the date is reached.

Analysis of Love

To embrace the whole creation with love sounds beautiful, but we must begin with the individual, with the nearest. And he who cannot love that deeply, intensely, entirely, how should he be able to love that which is remote and which throws but feeble rays upon him from a foreign star? How should he be able to love with any feeling which deserves the name of love? The greatest cosmopolites are generally the neediest beggars, and they who embrace the entire universe will love, for the most part, love nothing but their narrow self.—Henderson.

Liquor Trade Ends in Feud

Residents of Block Island Became Violent When Competition in Liquor Dispensing Divides Profits—Lone State Trooper Breaks Up Trade.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Block Island, R. I., Aug. 18.—A lone state trooper today stood guard over this "right little, tight little" island off the southern New England shore line—battle ground of a bitter feud over liquor dispensing to thirsty summer visitors between the hardy native islanders, faces bronzed by the summer sun and lined by the stinging winds of winter, and the pale-faced "invaders," particularly from Providence.

Things went quietly and well—for thirsty islanders—until competition came and profits from the liquid traffic to summer visitors began to dwindle. For a time the feud was carried under the surface but a few days ago it broke out into violence.

A business man from Providence bought a house near the shore. Word was passed around that he had liquor stored in it and was planning to begin selling. When he arrived on the Providence steamer, he found the house a mass of charred ruins.

The Red Top Inn, which it was claimed furnished the locally owned liquor competition, was the next object of the wrath of the natives. Under cover of night, a band of 12 men came to the Red Top Inn. They carried axes and sledge hammers. Charles O'Malley, owner of the inn and well known in Providence sporting circles fired two shots through the door but the battling continued until the door fell.

Malley was backed up against a wall and told to quit the island, under penalty of being thrown into the sea. Thereupon, buckets of hot tar were brought up and the walls, floors and ceilings were splattered with the black tar. Aubrey S. Dunn, town sergeant, said today that one warrant had been sworn out and more were coming.

At this point in the feud the new Rhode Island mounted police stepped into the picture. Three armed troopers swooped down on the island and surrounded the Yellow Kitchen Inn, native owned. The troopers went inside the building. When they came out they had Winfield F. Dodge, Jr., owner of the Yellow Kitchen, and Frank Butler, said to be the bartender, under arrest.

Dodge paid a $100 fine and Butler a $50 fine in first district court at Newport. Both pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition laws.

As the lone trooper left on the island by the raiders stood guard to day the natives were in a state of indignation and consternation. Things were about to go back to normalcy when a new type of "invader" arrived to break up the summer trade.

Rioting at Zionist Congress

Anti-Jewish Mob Stage Demonstrations at Vienna in Which Several Were Injured—100 Under Arrest For Participation in Melee.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Vienna, Aug. 18.—At Daybreak this morning eighty anti-semitic demonstrators had been arrested and a score of persons were known to have been injured in night-long riots which ushered in the world Zionist congress.

The serious stage in the rioting was reached when the Anti-Jewish mobs rushed the police who had taken vigorous measures to prevent meetings held to protest against the gathering of Zionists in the ancient Hapsburg capital. Of those who were injured some were slashed with sabres, others were hit with stones which flew in all directions during the melee, and still others were trampled beneath the feet of policemen's horses.

In consequence of the fury which has been aroused the entire police force of Vienna, aggregating 6,000, has been brought into action. All bridges over the Danube leading into the Jewish quarter of Vienna are closely guarded.

The trouble was started by organizations of youths with "strong nationalistic and anti-semitic prejudices who, thwarting all efforts of the police to control them, were bent upon breaking up the Zionist congress at all hazards.

The head of the Vienna police forbade the hostile demonstrations. Nevertheless, several thousand hot heads invaded the city and surrounded the hotels where the Zionist delegates were put up, shouting and shrieking their hostility.

President Weizmann rejected all suggestions for postponement of the opening of the congress on tonight until tomorrow night because of the anti-semitic demonstrations.

Order would now seem to have been restored. The police said today they expected no further outbreak. No Jews were among those injured in the riots. The police have arrested 26 additional demonstrators, making a total of 106 under arrest for participation in the disturbances.

Jack Kearns Also Signs Contract

By Telegraph to The Freeman
New York, Aug. 18.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, today signed a contract with the New York State Athletic Commission for Dempsey to meet Harry Wills, negro challenger, in a championship heavyweight bout some time next year.

Wills has had a formal challenge on file in the offices of the commission since last March.

Kearns posted a certified check of $25,000 with the commission as an evidence of good faith.

Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, preparing to bid for the de luxe bout, also deposited $25,000.

James E. Farley, chairman of the commission, said he expected Paddy Mullins, manager for Wills, to deposit an equal amount. Mullins was present but woefully announced he had forgotten his check book.

Kearns's action restored him to good standing in the eyes of the commission, according to Farley. Dempsey's manager was put on the "black list" for failing to take cognizance of the Wills challenge.

A Tough Break, Says Pa Ederle

When He Receives News of Daughter's Failure to Swim Channel—Was Willing to Bet That Butcher Shop.

By Telegraph to The Freeman
New York, Aug. 18.—"That's a tough break, I thought 'Trudy' would make it sure. 'But she's game—she'll try again. You can bet on that.'"

This was the declaration of Henry Ederle, brawny butcher, when informed by International News Service this afternoon that his daughter Gertrude, had failed to swim the English Channel.

Dad Ederle was surprised at the news.

"So she couldn't make it?" he claimed. "Well, well, well. You got any more information? There must have been a pretty good reason why she couldn't swim the channel—some kind of a tough break, because she certainly was in the best of condition and chuck full of confidence."

Hobbies of the Great and the Near Great

giving a Series of Intimate Glimpses into the Fads and Foibles of Well-Known Figures in National Life.

This is the twenty-fifth of a series of intimate sketches, which reveal the national political figure as "brother under the skin" to the man behind the plot, the white collar worker or the day laborer. Others will follow.

SENATOR GEORGE PEPPER

One of the nation's greatest legal authorities and a power in Republican councils, Senator George Wharton Pepper (R., of Penn.) finds his greatest recreation in hunting wild moose with a camera.

The Pennsylvania Senator would sooner roam the Maine woods on moosehunting for wild game with a fast shooting camera than argue the greatest legal case in the supreme court chamber. That is his chief hobby—the great outdoors.

Among a score of lesser hobbies, the senator devotes his spare time to farming, mountain climbing, tennis, golfing and other sports. In his youth the senator was a football star at the University of Pennsylvania, and this love for sports has never waned.

The north woods, deep under a mantle of snow, furnish the senator with his greatest pleasure. He loves to hunt for moose in the wilderness with a camera. His prize of the chase is a photograph of a huge wild moose taken at twenty yards focus.

Chased Moose.

"I hunted this moose with a camera," he told friends afterward. "I chased him for more than an hour in snowshoes, while the plowmen plowed the great drifts, walking to his shoulders in the snow at every step. At last I wore him down, and when I came up to him he was shambling down a circle in a dazed condition of mind. He was carrying a photograph and camera with him, having been standing in this circle for many hours. That moose doesn't know to this day what the chase was all about."

The senator is an excellent mountaineer. He has tested his ability both on American peaks and in the Alps. His greatest objective has been to climb the south face of Mount Katahdin in Maine, during the winter snows. He has made five attempts, in each of which he failed.

his carpentry knowledge even to build miniature ship models. "I like best," he adds, however, "to get out on the farm and take hold of an axe."

Heavy Eater.

His weakness is eating. The senator loves hearty meals. "I've never really had enough to eat," is his plaint. "Many times I've faced the opportunity of getting enough to satisfy my appetite, but I've always had to stop because of my capacity. It's a weakness, and I have to struggle continually to keep my weight down."

Back in 1883 and 1884 Pepper was an athletic star at the University of Pennsylvania. Today he plays an "old man's game" of tennis—too young yet for golf—and he is an ardent baseball fan. In 1914 he defended organized baseball in litigation caused by the Federal League's meteoric career. He personally drafted the agreement entered into by the American and National Leagues when peace was finally restored. Recently he has used his influence toward the erection of a permanent memorial to baseball in the national capital.

The senator also devotes much time to reading, particularly on obscure legal points. His great legal attainments have won him wide recognition and many honors, including a dozen university degrees. He is also the author of many legal essays, a number of law books and several digests of legal opinions.

But though he won his right to fame in a courtroom, the senator's first love is the great outdoors.

Tomorrow—Senator Thomas C. Walsh.

JUDGE LANDIS MAKES GIFT TO LEGION FUND.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 18.—Judge Kenneth Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, who has given all his spare time and energy to attending conferences and speaking in behalf of the national American Legion $5,000,000 endowment fund, made a money gift to it today. Judge Landis is a member of the national honor committee, of which President Coolidge is chairman.

He is one of the most popular men in the United States with Legionnaires, and his appearance at Legion gatherings always is greeted with a demonstration. He has shown himself repeatedly to be the devoted friend of the veteran of the world war, and especially the friend of the disabled veteran.

Speaking of the endowment fund,

One of These Is a Fake.

Paris artistic circles are in a furor over the Mona Lisa painting. The one on the right, stolen from the Louvre, is said to be spurious. The one on the left, in the possession of the English Consul, Marchese, is said by a German expert to be the real Mona Lisa. A board of examiners will decide which is the genuine.

now being raised to cure disabled boys, of Mrs. Busch's Sunday school veterans, and to give for the orphanages of the orphan service men. Judge Landis congregation are urged to attend.

Remember standing by the bus-terranes. Next Sunday morning the bus board when it looked at the enemy was making an advance. We are now in the frame of Philadelphia, Pa., who is well known in this city. He has preached in the church a number of times and is well liked by all who heard him.

ing way, and we are to get money for what is now about the follow-who was broken, damaged, physically and mentally.

"I had two million dollars. I would write a check for the full amount and hand it over right now. Judge Landis's check, however, was not cashed. He has received national headquarters of the Legion here for at least a year as the whole quota of some towns.
